

A Reading from the Rule of Social Media according to 2017

Social media said to its users:

"If another posts something you disagree with or offends you, respond with a sad or angry emoji, and instant message them as to why they were wrong.

If they listen to you, you have won them over.

If they do not listen, which is far more likely post a Meme or two to support your argument. Facts don't really matter as much as the "Likes" you get from other users.

If they still refuse to listen to you, report their posts as "offensive" to the social media administrators.

If they refuse to listen even to the social media administrators, then "unfriend them" and treat them like dirt. Assassinate their character by calling them names, like racist, idiot, misogynist, knucklehead, hater, snowflake, and hypocrite.

Amen, I say to you, whatever you post on social media shall be held against you, and whatever you decide to ignore and not fall for will provide you with great peace.

Again, amen, I say to you, if two of you agree on Facebook, Instagram, Twitter or the Blogosphere about anything you have posted,

it shall come back to bite you.

For where two or three are convinced that they are smarter or more right than anyone else, you can be sure they'll post a selfie."

The mess we've gotten ourselves into – God, have mercy!
